1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 23-35, 37 and 39-42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over McLaughlin in view of Roush. McLaughlin teaches a device for centering a primer in a blasthole through the use of a sleeve and arms to engage the sides of said hole, with the sleeve holding the primer. Roush uses a conically tapered end and flexible arms for the same purpose, with such unit holding the primer and charge. It would be obvious to an artisan desiring to both protect the primer and be able to adjust the same in the borehole environment to use the mechanism of Roush in the McLaughlin centering arrangement.

2. Claims 36 and 38 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. Claim 37 would be allowable if made dependent upon claim 36 only.
